

1. A client-based messaging method, comprising:

sending a message to each recipient based on said destination information at least in part based on the type of recipient messaging device.